OVERVIEW MAP OF REGION

South Tyrol

An overview of basic historical, economic, cultural, linguistic and culinary information

South Tyrol is Italy's northernmost province. Since the 1970s, it has enjoyed comprehensive right of self-governance. The province capital is Bolzano. Cultural and linguistically, South Tyrol differs markedly from the rest of the country: here, in addition to Italian speakers, there are also German and Ladin language groups. For centuries, in fact, the province was part of the Habsburg monarchy.

South Tyrol is thus a melting pot of cultures and contrasts. It is here that the Alpine and Mediterranean lifestyles and cuisines intersect. Customs converge here, fusing into something altogether new. Exploring the nooks and crannies of the enchanting little town – part of which dates back to the Middle Ages – against the backdrop of the spectacular open-air stage that is the Dolomites is extremely rewarding.

History of South Tyrol

1918

First World War

The First World War ends and, with the peace treaty of St. Germain, the southern part of the Austrian crown land of Tyrol becomes part of Italy. The new frontier is the Brenner Pass.

1922–46

Fascism

Forced Italianization of German-speaking South Tyrol; German no longer used in schools; Resettlement of townspeople from Italy's southern provinces; Anyone who wants to retain their German culture is forced to emigrate to Nazi Germany.

1946

After the Second World War

The victorious powers refuse to grant South Tyrol self-determination; Paris Treaty between Italy and Austria: assurance of specific measures to protect the minority in South Tyrol; The agreement is not respected for decades.

Struggle for Autonomy

As the Paris treaty has yet to be implemented 15 years following its signing, Austria appeals to the UN. At the same time tensions in South Tyrol are escalating. On the night of 11 June 1961 dozens of electricity pylons throughout South Tyrol are blown up. The “night of fire” draws the attention of the Italian and European public to South Tyrol.

1972

Lengthy negotiations between Rome, Bolzano and Vienna

Following the debates at the UN and the bomb attacks at the beginning of the 1960s, lengthy negotiations between Rome, Bolzano and Vienna finally produce a whole “Package” of measures, introduced as the Second Autonomy Statute. The new autonomy for South Tyrol comes into force on 20 January 1972 and secures equal rights and protection for all three language groups in the land.

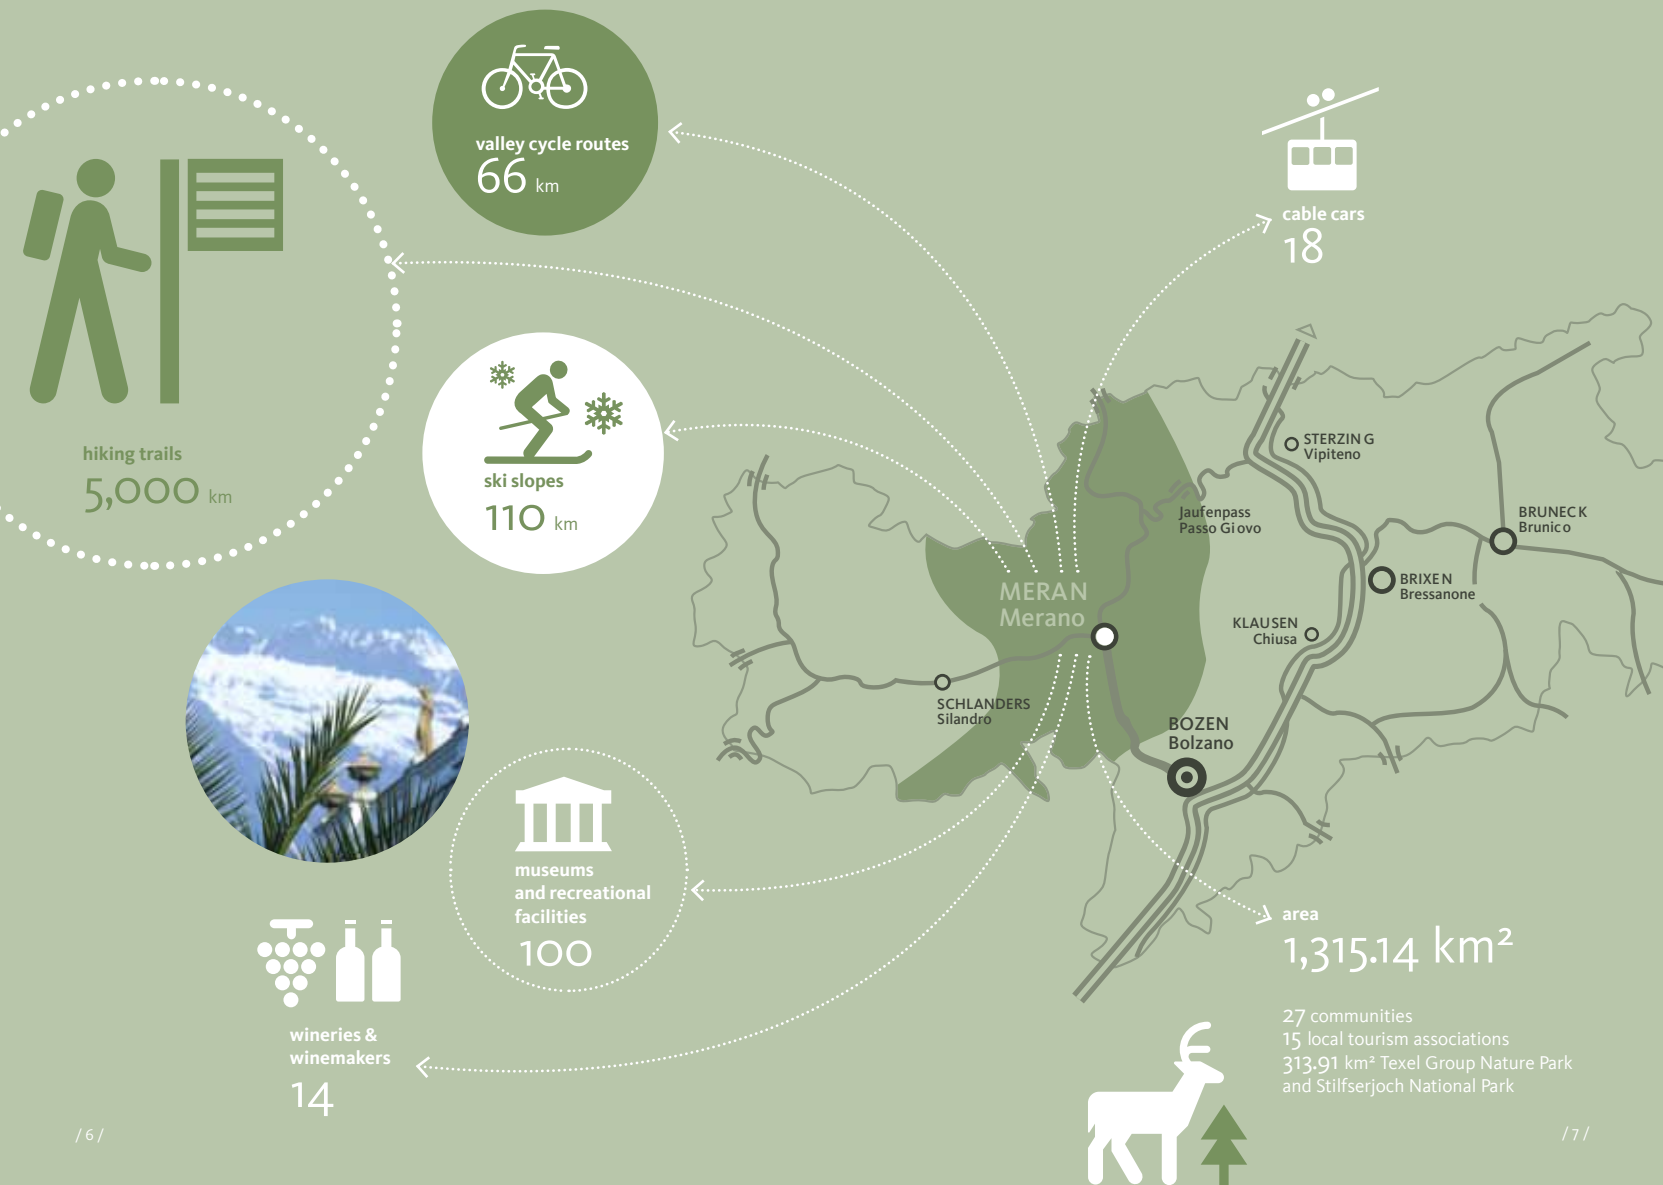

Today

Three language groups

live under an autonomous administration, which has been gradually expanded and consolidated; A complex system (equal political representation of the three language groups) regulates this coexistence; The staff members of offices and public institutions are bilingual, and in some cases, trilingual.

Merano & Environs: Alpine–Mediterranean Quality of Life

The Merano & Environs region is located in the western part of South Tyrol. It offers a wealth of juxtapositions: Alpine mountains versus Mediterranean-influenced valleys, urban life in contrast to the enchanting countryside, and traditional farms against modern architecture. The activities are just as diverse: enjoy the great outdoors, reflect on the day while relaxing in a whey bath, or indulge in the culinary creations of a top chef. Pleasure and wellbeing are always of the utmost importance.

The Spa Town of Merano and Its Environs

The fashionable spa town of Merano, which has nearly 40,000 inhabitants, is also defined by its contrasts: Mediterranean climate and palm trees in the valley set against the snow, ice and Alpine landscapes of the mountains that surround it. Historical buildings such as the Kurhaus and the medieval Lauben arcades dominate the townscape while contemporary buildings like the Merano Thermal Baths give a modern feel. Stylish boutiques and gourmet shops just beg you to do some shopping, but the street cafes entice you to drink a cappuccino in the sunshine instead. This is Italian style set against an Alpine panorama.

A mild climate throughout the year, a seamless transition from valley to high mountains, and the region's abundance of water are the foundation of Merano's more than 150-year history as a health resort. The city boasts pristine and well-maintained nature, and is surrounded by mountains and valleys. Life in the outlying villages is leisurely and strongly rooted in Alpine traditions. Castles, fortresses and rural culture lend a unique character to the region.

One particularly strong point of the Merano and Environs area is the fact that it offers extensive spa services and high-quality treatments using natural local products. In addition to a number of walking paths and promenades in town and wide-ranging hiking options along Waalweg water channels and in the high mountains, another of Merano's real treasures is its water. It's as if mineral water flows directly from the taps. As a result, a long-standing tradition of beneficial bathing in rural areas and health facilities exists. The beneficial effect of water is evidenced at waterfalls like the one in Partschins, where the spray is beneficial to the respiratory tract. The many cottage gardens around Merano and the public herb garden on the Tappeinerweg Trail are testimony to another hallmark of the region: rich lore about the cultivation of herbs and their use in healing and cooking.

South Tyrolean Cuisine

South Tyrol's cuisine is a fusion of rustic Tyrolean or old Austrian traditions and Mediterranean, especially Italian, cooking. In everyday life, traditional South Tyrolean entrees are commonly eaten together with Italian antipasti and classic pasta dishes. There are also high-quality products produced locally that are based on these specialties.

» South Tyrolean Snack Boards

A Merende is a typical South Tyrolean snack served on a wooden board or plate. It usually includes South Tyrolean Speck; cheese from alpine farms or one of the area's many cheese dairies; freshly baked South Tyrolean bread such as Vinschger Paarl, also known as Vinschgerle, or Schüttelbrot, a crispy flat bread made of rye flour. The classic accompaniment is a good glass of red wine – Vernatsch, for example.

» Knödel

Knödel are made of day-old bread, eggs and milk; the dumplings are boiled in water. Variations include spinach, cheese, liver and bacon. This dish is usually served as an accompaniment to meat or as an appetizer with melted butter and Parmigiano cheese. There is even a sweet version made with apricots and potato dough: Marillknödel.

TIP Knödel dumplings should be eaten with a fork only. If you use a knife to cut them, it is a signal that they are too hard – an insult to the chef!

» Schlutzkrapfen

Schlutzkrapfen, also known as Schlutzer, are hearty ravioli that probably originated in the Puster Valley. The name derives from the verb schluzen, which means “slip” or “slide.” The traditionally filling is made of spinach and Quark cheese.

» Sauerkraut with Surfleisch

Sauerkraut is cabbage preserved through lactic-acid fermentation. It is flavored with juniper berries and bay leaves, cooked for a long time, and served as a side dish with Surfleisch, or marinated pork.

TIP Alpine farms and mountain inns bearing the “Echte Qualität am Berg” (Real Quality in the Mountains) designation guarantee especially high-quality preparation of local specialties.

» Apfelstrudel

South Tyrolean apple strudel is made with thin strips of sweet-and-sour apples and raisins, wrapped inside a short-crust that has powdered sugar sprinkled on top. Sometimes strudel is served warm with vanilla sauce, vanilla ice cream or whipped cream.

» Bauernkrapfen

Bauernkrapfen crullers are a very old South Tyrolean specialty. Prepared differently depending on the region, they are fried in oil until light brown in color and then filled with apricot jam, poppy seeds or chestnuts.

TIP These delicious treats are often prepared fresh by local farmers and sold during special events and village festivals.

» Pasta, pizza and coffee

Over the course of the last decades, Italian cuisine has infused South Tyrolean fare to a considerable degree.

Pasta and pizza: In South Tyrol, countless variations of both are available – often with a dash of local taste. Many pizzerias offer, for example, Tyrolean pizza with Speck or pizza with asparagus and Bozner Sauce, a egg-based specialty from Bolzano. Pasta is available in the traditional form of traditional durum-wheat pasta, as rye-based Schüttelbrotnudeln, or with mountain herbs. Coffee: An essential component of Italian lifestyle, coffee is served in the forms of espresso (small cup of strong black coffee), macchiato (espresso with a macchia or “spot” of frothy milk) and cappuccino (larger cup of coffee with frothy milk).

TIP In Italy, cappuccino is ordered only before noon – traditionally for breakfast. After dinner, coffee is drunk black or with a shot of grappa (caffè corretto).

» The Tradition of Törggelen

The word Törggelen derives from Torggl, meaning “wine press.” A Törggelen party takes place in autumn – ideally in a traditional Törggelekeller cellar – and usually starts with Tyrolean dishes that can be either light or hearty, such as Speck ham, Schlutzkrapfen ravioli, or Schlachtplatte, a meat platter. Then it’s time for the real star of the show: roasted chestnuts, known in South Tyrol as Keschn. The classic accompaniment is the season’s new wine, still sweet, called Suser.

» Real Quality in the Mountains

The Real Quality in the Mountains initiative honors alpine inns, mountain lodges and refuges that are committed to authentic Alpine quality. These establishments are run with a high degree of dedication, and place great importance on hospitality, authenticity and regional products.

» Information: www.meranerland.com/echte-qualitaet

TIP The free Real Quality in the Mountains app (Echte Qualität am Berg), which may be downloaded from the Apple Store or through Google Play, contains information about all of the awarded businesses in addition to various hikes, tours and recipes to try at home.

Summer Activities

HIKING

One of the most inspiring and relaxing activities on offer in Merano and Environs is to simply choose from among the region's many outstanding hiking options. Hikes range from city promenades to challenging mountain treks and from the mostly flat Waalweg trails that run along ancient waterways to fixed-rope climbing routes. One thing all of these options have in common: delightful views.

» Merano High Mountain Trail

The Merano High Mountain Trail (Alta Via di Merano in Italian and Meraner Höhenweg in German) is an extraordinary multi-day hike through the Texel Group Nature Park. The route is divided into northern and southern circuits, and hiking is possible throughout the course of the whole year. The entire route runs 94 km (58 miles) and takes between 4 and 6 days. The Merano High Mountain Trail is not only a challenge, but also brings hikers into close proximity with the local flora and fauna, which are an integral part of the landscape. Spectacular views are par for the course here: in addition to the Vinschgau Valley, the Merano basin, and the Alps of the Passeier, Sarntal, Stubaital, and Ötztal valleys, you may even be able to see the Dolomites, the Brenta Group and Mount Ortler. There are a number of mountain lodges and inns along the way where you can stay overnight. The route is sign-posted No. 24, and exposed sections of the trail have been secured by chains, ropes or railings.

- » Best starting and finishing points: Dorf Tirol, Naturns, Partschins, Pfunders and Algend
- » Length of route: 94 km
- » Elevation gain: 5,056 m
- » Level of difficulty: challenging
- » Best period: July to September (southern circuit: May to October)
- » Walking time: 4 to 6 days for the entire trail. Individual legs are possible as day hikes.

TIP

The Sponser Lakes are ten high-alpine lakes located in the mountains of Texel Group Nature Park. These lakes supply water to much of Merano and its surrounding areas. Some very beautiful hiking routes run past the lakes.

ALSO POSSIBLE
AS A GUIDED SKI TOUR
FROM OCTOBER TO APRIL

» Ötzi Glacier Tour

This guided glacier hike leads over the Hauslabjoch Pass to the place where the world-famous glacial mummy known as Ötzi was discovered at an elevation of 3,210 meters. In addition to breathtaking views of the glaciers around Mount Similaun, you can try walking in a roped party and climbing over rocks secured with wire ropes. This high-alpine tour is manageable if you are experienced, but note that some passages are recommended only for hikers with good physical stamina, sure-footedness, and no vertigo problems.

- » Starting and finishing point: Maso Corto, Senales Valley
- » Length of route: 16 km
- » Elevation gain: 1,900 m
- » Level of difficulty: challenging
- » Best time of year: June to October
- » Walking time: 7 to 8 hours

FAMILY TIP

» Merano Waalweg Trail

This hike runs through the entire Merano Valley Basin and follows ancient water channels called Waalwege, making it a wonderful way to explore the area. The Waalwege are man-made water channels commonly found throughout South Tyrol, which have been used since the thirteenth century. Farmers originally used rudimentary tools to build the channels, which were designed to regulate water distribution – quite a clever idea, actually. Today, the paths running alongside these waterways are popular with hikers and passable at any time of the year.

The Merano Waalweg Trail unites eleven separate paths: along the way there are inns, castles, churches and natural sights. Another advantage to the Waalwege trails is that they run at relatively low elevations: between 400 and 900 meters. Hikers can walk all of the trail's eight stages in about a week; doing a single leg as a day hike is another option. The Merano Waalweg Trail is a nice supplement to the popular Merano High Mountain Trail.

- » Best starting and finishing point: Algund-Töllgraben
- » Length of route: 80 km
- » Elevation gain: 2,880 m
- » Level of difficulty: intermediate
- » Best time of year: March to June and September to November
- » Walking time: 8 days for the entire trail. Individual legs are possible as day hikes

» Tappeinerweg Trail

The Tappeinerweg Trail is a promenade that runs for 4 kilometers along the side of Mount Küchelberg. It is bordered by species-rich Mediterranean vegetation. A walk along the trail offers beautiful views of Merano and the whole Burggrafenamt area.

- » Best starting and finishing point: center of Merano
- » Length of trail: 4 km
- » Elevation gain: 100 m
- » Level of difficulty: easy
- » Best time of year: all year round
- » Walking time: 2 to 3 hours

MTB

Cycling fans will find a lot to rave about in Merano and Environs: there are easy bike paths in the valley, trails through the forest, and routes crossing vast high-alpine pastures. Mountain biking thrives here as a result of this wealth of possibilities, and people you meet are always happy to share an insider's tip. There is something for everyone, whether you just want to take a nice little ride with the kids or attempt a trail that winds up to a mountain peak. In Merano and Environs, hikers and nature are both of the utmost importance: this mutual respect guarantees that the Merano's countryside will always remain a paradise for hikers and bikers alike.

» Mountain Bike Route: to the stone quarries

Töll – Quadrathöfe – Rasner Kreuz – Forest Trail No. 9 – Seespitz – Forest Trail No. 9 – Eggerhof – Quadrathöfe – Töll

- » Best starting and finishing point: Töll-bridge
- » Length: approx. 25 km
- » Elevation gain: 1,000 m; elevation loss: 1,500 m
- » Level of difficulty: intermediate to challenging
- » Best time of year: May to October
- » Duration of excursion: 3,5 hours

» Mountain Bike Route: rural trail on Mount Nörderberg

Naturns – Sportplatz – Nörderberg – Steilhof – Brandhof – Birchberg – Plaus – Naturns

- » Best starting and finishing point: Naturns Train Station
- » Length of route: approx. 18 km
- » Elevation gain: 800 m; elevation loss: 600 m
- » Level of difficulty: intermediate to challenging
- » Best time of year: March to October
- » Duration of excursion: 2,5 hours

BIKE ROUTES

In addition to the new panoramic bike route through the Vinschgau Valley, which is supported by the local railway, you'll find a wealth of bike paths here. Choose between a relaxing ride through the valley or venturing up into an alpine world and trying a mountain pass or riding along one of the high plateaus. If you choose the latter, spectacular outlook points and breathtaking scenery are ample reward for the effort. Even racing cyclists can test their mettle: two highly recommended passes, Timmelsjoch Pass and Gampen Pass, both form part of the Giro d'Italia.

TIP Timmelsjoch (2,509 m) is a border pass between Austria and Italy. At resting points along the pass road, walk-in architectural sculptures communicate information about the historical and geographical particularities of the region.

» Vinschgau Valley Bike Route

The Vinschgau Valley Bike Route leads from the Reschen Pass to Merano, running along what was once a Roman trade road: the Via Claudia Augusta. The path offers cyclists a great opportunity to combine physical activity and fun. If you get tired, you can just hop on the train at one of the stations. Those who want a real challenge can continue through the Adige Valley to Bolzano, about 30 kilometers further.

- » Best starting and finishing point: Mals–Merano
- » Length: 62 km
- » Elevation gain: 700 m
- » Level of difficulty: intermediate
- » Best time of year: April to October
- » Duration of excursion: 3,5 hours

» Passeier Valley Bike Route

This bike route into the Passeier Valley leads from Merano to St. Leonhard, following the Passer River. Running mostly flat or slightly uphill through the predominately rural countryside, it passes Sandwirt, the birthplace of legendary freedom fighter Andreas Hofer. The local MuseumPasseier offers interesting insights into the history of Tyrol and addresses our modern-day approach to heroes.

- » Best starting and finishing point: Merano to St. Leonhard and back
- » Length of route: Merano to St. Leonhard leg, 21 km
- » Elevation gain: 350 m
- » Level of difficulty: intermediate
- » Best time of year: April-October
- » Duration of excursion: Merano to St. Leonhard leg, 2 hours

» Bike and E-Bike Points

There are bike points in Merano and its surrounding villages as well as along the railway line running between Merano and Mals (see page 57). From early April to late October, you can borrow mountain bikes, women's, men's and children's bikes and electric bikes. Safety helmets and child seats are also available, of course.

SWIMMING

» Merano Thermal Baths

The Merano Thermal Baths complex, located in the center of the spa resort town, offers indoor and outdoor swimming pools, a large spa & wellness area, and a spacious park. There are also numerous outdoor pools within the Merano and Environs area, some of which offer fantastic views of the Adige Valley.

The complex, a transparent cube of glass and steel with wooden elements, arches above indoor pools and represents a stately oasis of wellbeing in the heart of the city. Its expansive and verdant park surrounds outdoor swimming pools. The Merano Thermal Baths is a unique opportunity for visitors to experience true relaxation amidst the beauty of Mother Nature.

» Gargazon Natural Bathing Pond

This natural swimming pool located in Gargazon is divided into a swimming area that includes a natural landscaped creek and small children's pool and a regeneration area, where the growing plants provide natural water purification. This type of cleaning system allows for chemical treatment of the water to be avoided completely.

3

» Kaltern Lake

Kaltern Lake is an extremely popular day-trip destination. The warmest lake in the Alps, it is nestled idyllically amidst the vineyards south of Kaltern and near Tramin, the hometown of Gewürztraminer.

TIP

A bike ride from Merano along the tranquil South Tyrolean Wine Road is a worthwhile day trip – especially in autumn, when the grapes are being harvested. Three different bike routes amidst the vineyards provide an opportunity to visit wine cellars and castles and to cycle past Kaltern Lake.

CANOEING, CANYONING, RAFTING, TARZANING, PARAGLIDING

Merano has long been a hub for canoeing. The European and world championships of the sport have both been held here more than once. The Passer River provides ideal conditions for canoeing enthusiasts, especially in spring – and is equally well suited to canyoning. Inflatable boats make the Adige and Passer rivers accessible to everyone. One does not need any special experience to participate in the rafting tour: a relaxed attitude and a healthy respect for flowing water are all that is required. Professional guides will assist you, adapting each tour to personal needs.

Capture an eagle's-eye view of the earth, paragliding freely through the air. Expert tandem pilots will ensure your safety and comfort as you relax and enjoy a truly incomparable view.

- » Best time of year: April to October
- » Duration of flight: about 1 hour

TIP In a fascinating Passeier Valley canyon, expert instructors will show you how to handle yourself in whitewater and the basics of climbing.

FAMILY TIP

ALPIN BOB

Merano 2000's Alpin Bob winds through the trees and over mountainous terrain. The thrill, which involves racing down the mountain on rails, lasts for more than a kilometer.

- » Best time of year: all year round
- » Duration of excursion: 1 hour

CLIMBING

Merano and Environs offer great opportunities for indoor and outdoor climbing. There are many specialized climbing parks: Alghud's bouldering area, the climbing garden in Pfelders, the area around the St. Hippolyt church in Lana, Fragsburg Waterfall, and Merano's RockArena climbing hall, which is open year round. High-ropes courses, where you can learn climbing basics, are a good option for beginners. The magnificent Dolomites, just an hour's drive from Merano, are a true paradise for climbers. The choice of routes ranges from easy to difficult.

FAMILY TIP

» High-Ropes Courses

The high-ropes courses in Senales and Passeier valleys and at Taser Family Alm in Schenna offer a unique climbing experience for adventurous visitors.

- » Best time of year: April to October
- » Duration of excursion: 3 hours

» Mountaineering in the Dolomites

The Alpini Trail, which starts in the village of Sexten, is a highly regarded mountain route set amidst the magnificent natural splendor of the Dolomites. The trail is not too difficult yet affords unforgettable views.

- » Best time of year: June to September
- » Duration of excursion: all day

GOLF

In Merano and Environs, there are two golf clubs: Passeier Meran and Lana Gutshof Brandis. Both courses, which are open from February to December, are popular amongst expert and recreational golfers alike.

4

» Golf Club Passeier.Meran

This redesigned 18-hole golf course in St-Leonhard is an absolute delight. It is quite large, affords magnificent views and offers high-quality services.

5

» Lana Golf Club

Lana Golf Club is a stylish 9-hole course laid out below the ruins of Brandis Castle and designed by acclaimed British golf-course designer Michael Pinner.

FAMILY TIP

TRADITIONAL HAFLINGER HORSERACING

A number of riding stables in the village of Hafling offer guided trail rides and pony riding tours, as well as individual and group lessons. Whether in winter or summer, there are several places where you can enjoy a horse-drawn carriage ride, including Hafling and in the Passeier Valley. The racecourse in Merano is among the most famous in Europe. Highlights of the season include the traditional Haflinger horse races on Easter Monday and the Merano Grand Prix, a high-stakes steeplechase held on the last Sunday in September (see page 52).

FISHING

Rivers, Alpine reservoirs, streams, and high-mountain lakes: in Merano and Environs, everyone will find his or her own ideal body of water for fishing. The marbled trout, an indigenous species of large trout, is very much sought after. The chance of catching one on the Passer, Falschauer or Adige rivers is actually very good. Most stretches of water may be entered in order to use the gentle approach needed for fly-fishing, providing that you have a valid water-fishing day pass for each particular stretch of water. Day passes are available at the Passeier Valley Tourist Association or at Jawag, a hunting store in Marling. Fishing permits (mandatory in Italy: € 32) may be obtained at Merano Tourist Bureau.

Winter Activities

In the Merano and Environs holiday region there are five diverse areas for winter sports ranging from an old-time family ski area to a glacier. There are runs and snow parks for all levels of skiers, snowboarders, freeriders and telemark skiers. Serpentine natural sledding trails and the Alpine Bob at Merano 2000 guarantee that everyone has fun. Ski touring, cross-country skiing and snowshoeing are fabulous ways to enjoy the region's pristine nature in a relaxed way. Or you can take a romantic horse-drawn sleigh ride through snow-blanketed woods in discovery of idyllic mountain villages. More information is available at the local tourist associations within the holiday region of Merano and Environs.

SKIING, SNOWBOARDING AND TELEMARK SKIING

Merano and Environs offers ideal conditions for skiing and snowboarding: guaranteed snow, great mountains, a wide range of facilities and sunny weather. The five ski areas within Merano and Environs are part of Ortler Ski Arena, an alliance that comprises a total of 16 ski areas. All 16 are easily reachable and well connected to one another. Fans of snowboarding will find their own little piece of paradise at the huge Senales Glacier Snow Park (120,000 square meters) in Senales Valley. The Pfelders facility is built directly into the sunny side of the mountain. Both snow parks are freshly groomed every day and re-shaped twice a week.

Telemark skiing was invented in 1886 in Norway. Telemark skis are quite similar to Alpine skis in form and appearance. The main difference is the binding: only the front of the telemark boot is fixed into the binding while the heel remains free. Telemark ski equipment is available throughout winter season in both ski areas; the ski schools of both also offer telemark courses.

FAMILY TIP

SLEDDING

The thrilling, zigzagging natural sled trails in Merano and Environs ensure that this sport enjoys great popularity with people of all ages. The holiday region's five skiing and hiking areas accordingly attach great importance to the maintenance of their sledding runs, which have varying levels of difficulty. Many of the mountain lodges offer sleds for hire.

CROSS-COUNTRY SKIING

All of the five winter sport areas in the holiday region of Merano and Environs offer guests lovely cross-country ski trails with spectacular views:

- » With only a slight elevation gain, the cross-country skiing trail in Ulten Valley winds through an incredibly pristine landscape of forests, fields and meadows.
- » The Passeier Valley offers several good cross-country trails like the one ski area of Pfellers, which is perfect for beginners and for more experienced skiers alike.
- » The Senales Valley Glacier has two high-alpine cross-country trails. A number of national teams train regularly at the glacier.
- » The cross-country run at Merano 2000 ski area comprises 3 km (1.8 miles). Moderate difficulty, suitable for slightly advanced skiers.

All cross-country trails are appropriate for both classic and skating techniques.

SKI TOURING

There are more opportunities for ski touring in Merano and Environs than one might imagine. The best are found in the three valleys nearest to Merano: the Ulten, Senales and Passeier valleys. The routes with the best conditions for ski touring run at elevations of between 1,200 and 3,700 meters.

» Popular Ski Tours

WINTER HIKING

Because the climate in Merano and Environs is so mild, many of the summer hiking trails are also accessible in winter. Merano's promenades and the Tappeinerweg Trail, which runs just above town, are great tips for winter walking: it affords delightful views of the townscape and surrounding mountains. Limitless hiking options can be found in Merano's outlying areas. At Merano 2000 ski area, all of the chalets and mountain huts are within comfortable walking distance. The Vigiljoch high plateau offers awe-inspiring views of the Dolomites.

SNOWSHOEING

In Merano and Environs, snowshoe hikers have an option of choosing between basic excursions through the side valleys and circuit trails on high plateaus above the tree line.

ICE CLIMBING

The Merano and Environs region is highly respected in the climbing world for its bouldering sites, which are accessible year round. There are also a number of icefalls at varying levels of difficulty. Senales and the Passeier Valley are home to some of the largest waterfalls in the region. The lengths of the routes here range between two and six pitches, and most waterfalls can be climbed in just under half an hour. The range of grading for waterfall ice is wide here: from WI3 to WI6. There are also mixed tours: some routes with a grading of up to M5 are suitable for beginners as well as experienced ice climbers. Ice climbing facilities: There is an artificial ice-climbing tower in Rabenstein, a village located in the Passeier Valley. The tower is big enough to accommodate more than ten ice climbers at a time.

- » Best time of year for ice climbing in the area: December to March

ICE SKATING

Ice-skating is really back in vogue again. In Merano and Environs there are indoor ice-skating rinks in addition to lakes that make fabulous outdoor rinks. MeranArena: this public ice-skating hall offers skating shows, lots of fun and a rental service between November and March. Ice hockey tournaments take place here once a week. In Senales Valley there are two outdoor ice rinks: one is situated in the village of Certosa, the main square of which is converted into an idyllic rink during the winter. The rink in the Ulten Valley, which has a rental service, is located near Schwemmalm Ski Area. Alpine curling tournaments take place here every Friday. Schwarze Lacke is an idyllic woodland pond situated atop Mount Vigiljoch, above Lana. Even though this enchanting little natural lake lies in the middle of a forest, it is easily reachable from the summit station on foot or via chairlift.

SLEIGH RIDES

One of the best ways to explore Merano and Environs in winter is a sleigh ride through the snowy winter landscape, passing quaint villages and traditional farms. Hafling and the Passeier Valley are wonderful options.

CHRISTMAS MARKETS

The Christmas season in Merano and Environs is deeply rooted in tradition yet remarkably multifaceted. The region's Christmas markets start opening at the end of November, and whether you prefer the hustle and bustle in town or the tranquil Alpine ambience in the villages and castles, one thing is clear: Christmas is here (see page 54).

WELLNESS AND RELAXATION

Merano has been a thriving health resort since the nineteenth century thanks to its mild climate. After Sisi, the Austrian empress, spent her summer holiday in Merano, the little town – in fact, the whole region – transformed into a vibrant resort and gained prominence for its Badlkultur (bathing culture) overnight. Despite its historical flair, the Merano and Environs holiday region has moved forward with the times. This is evidenced both by contemporary architecture and spa facilities such as the Merano Thermal Baths and by interesting spa services based on local products and a long-standing tradition of natural healing. These range from traditional hay baths to whey treatments to organic herbal saunas. Invigorating herbal teas from Alpine cottage gardens are as much a part of Merano's spa tradition as are the grape cure or the wealth of products derived from the South Tyrolean apple.

MERANO THERMAL BATHS

In the Spa and Vitality area, you will leave the stress of everyday life behind and enjoy a wide selection of massages, aromatic baths and body packs. Whether relaxing or revitalizing, strengthening or purifying, all of the treatments on offer make use of premium quality organic products from South Tyrol. Enjoy a wide array of wellness baths with aromas and essences derived from local products such as juniper, grapes, mountain hay, apples and dandelions. The Merano Thermal Baths complex is open 365 days a year.

Cultural Highlights & Nature's Best

The cultural offering in Merano and Environs is wide ranging. This is in tune with the region's unique and eventful history and its location at the interface between the German and Italian cultural areas, between North and South, between the Alps and the Mediterranean. This also applies to Mother Nature: Mediterranean vegetation thrives in Merano's parks and along its promenades, vineyards and apple orchards flourish around the city, and coniferous forests, alpine meadows and majestic three-thousanders dot the landscape at higher elevations.

THE GARDENS OF TRAUTTMANSDORFF CASTLE

The botanical Gardens of Trauttmansdorff Castle, located on the outskirts of the sun-blessed spa resort of Merano, is among the world's most beautiful gardens (International Garden of the Year 2013). Trauttmansdorff's twelve-hectare complex and intriguing Experience Stations take visitors on a botanical voyage around the world. Matteo Thun's Viewing Platform, which is designed in the form of binoculars and 95% see-through, gives you the feeling of floating freely in the air with breathtaking views of the Adige Valley, Merano, and the Texel Group Nature Park. In summer, the Garden Nights concert series brings the finest in world music to the floating stage at the Water Lily Pond.

PALAIS MAMMING MUSEUM

The Palais Mammig Museum, where the collections of Merano's municipal museum are displayed, is housed in the newly renovated Baroque palace on Piazza Duomo. The display collection gives an overview of the city's historical development. The circuit starts with pre-history and early history, touching on all areas of life all the way up to modern art. What makes this particular collection so delightful, though, is its exotic pieces such as an Egyptian mummy, a collection of Sudanese weapons that once belonged to the adventurer Slatin Pasha, a Peter Mitterhofer typewriter and a death mask of Napoleon.

MUSEUM PASSEIER

The MuseumPasseier is located in the Passeier Valley, on the farm of Tyrolean patriot Andreas Hofer. It focuses on the turbulent times of the Napoleonic Era, and illuminates the life of the man who went down in history as a freedom fighter who dared to oppose Napoleon. The ethnographical collection in the museum's barn brings rural life in the nineteenth century to life, displaying original pieces from the era.

CASTLES AND HISTORIC WALLS

With over 400 castles and ruins, South Tyrol has a higher density of castles than any other region in Europe. The highest concentration of castles and manors in Merano and Environs can be found in two castle villages: Tisens and Prissian. Fahlburg Castle, for example, houses a wonderful restaurant and hotel today. Another must for visitors is a guided tour through the well-preserved and enchanting Leberberg Castle in Tschermers, near Lana. Schenna Castle, built in 1330 and besieged by Friedrich IV of the Empty Pockets, boasts marvelous interior decoration featuring fantastic ceilings, wainscoting and a large collection of paintings.

Archduke Sigmund built the Landesfürstliche Burg (Prince's Castle), which is still located in the center of Merano, in 1470 as an in-town residence. Brunnenburg Castle is a privately owned hillside castle in Tirol. In addition to the Ezra Pound Center for Literature, it houses a museum of South Tyrolean rural culture. Runkelstein Castle in Bolzano is graced by a cycle of secular frescoes that depict the Knights of the Round Table and Tristan & Isolde. Churburg Castle in the Vinschgau Valley is also worth a visit – notably for its collection of more than 50 customized sets of armor.

TYROL CASTLE

The most famous castle of the region is undoubtedly Tyrol Castle. The majestic walls of the former seat of the Counts of Tyrol tower above the Merano Valley Basin – an unmistakable reminder of the past. Tyrol Castle, construction of which began as early as the eleventh century, was the seat of the local government until 1420 and kept watch over an economic and cultural Golden Age. In fact, many of the castle's treasures date to this period. Tyrol Castle is home today to the well appointed South Tyrolean Museum of History. The main part of the museum covers many different facets of life during the Middle Ages; the castle tower, meanwhile, is dedicated to the modern age and the eventful history of the region between 1898 and 1992. Special exhibitions on chosen topics and sundry cultural and festive events enrich the museum's calendar.

CHURCH OF ST. PROKULUS

The earliest wooden structure of the Church of St. Prokulus near Naturns was built in the seventh century. Its interior contains the oldest fresco in the entire German-speaking area: a pre-Carolingian work dating from between the seventh and eighth centuries. In the twelfth century, a Romanesque tower was added to the church. The St. Prokulus Museum opposite the church is dedicated to the extraordinary fresco and to the historical plague cemetery located outside the church.

ÖTZI THE ICEMAN

Ötzi the Iceman is, beyond question, among the most famous South Tyroleans. The exceedingly well-conserved glacial mummy was found in September 1991 at Tisenjoch Pass in Senales Valley; he is estimated to be around 5,300 years old. Even today, Ötzi is still the only body from the Copper Age preserved by natural freeze-drying in all of Central Europe. Over the years, scientists from around the world have studied the Iceman and have consequently gained a great deal of knowledge about life in the Copper Age.

SENALES VALLEY ARCHEOPARC

The archeoParc in the Senales Valley was built near the site of the sensational discovery of the oldest glacial mummy ever found, Ötzi the Iceman. Half an hour's drive from Merano, this interactive museum concentrates on the Neolithic period and features excellent informative exhibits, photographs, video and various other attractions. In the outdoor area visitors can view reconstructed huts, clothes, implements and tools, even participating in demonstrations of living conditions during the Neolithic period.

MUSEION

Museion, South Tyrol's museum of contemporary art, recently inaugurated its new building in the heart of Bolzano. The building's cubic form is quite striking visually: in fact, the dazzling architecture itself is a vehicle for juxtaposition between the city's historical center and some of its more modern areas, the meadows that flank the Talvera River, and its two new bridges. Museion showcases rotating temporary exhibits that have international relevance.

K. & K. BAD EGART MUSEUM

Bad Egart, located in the Töll district of Partschins, is home to the oldest Badl (baths) in Tyrol. The source has been documented since 1430, but was probably used for drinking and bathing since Roman times. The passionate collector, Onkel Taa, has transformed the historic Badl into an exhibition area over the course of 50 years. On display are personal items of Emperor Franz Joseph I and Empress Elisabeth, affectionately known as Sisi, and K.u.K. rarities that belonged to Crown Prince Rudolf, Kaiser Karl and Archduke Johann.

KRÄNZELHOF - SEVEN GARDENS

The village of Tschermers, near Merano, is home to the labyrinth garden at Kränzel Manor. Visitors may choose their own Ariadne's thread: wine, arts and cuisine are just three of the many options to explore. The owner also offers wine tastings that illustrate the very individual characters of his homegrown wines. Tastings are held in the historical restaurant, Miil, the interior of which captures the unique atmosphere of this winegrowing area. Kränzel Manor also has a collection of local and international art on exhibit; subject matter changes frequently. Inside the maze, visitors can discover their own hidden artistic talent.

THE CULTURE OF WINE, BEER AND SPIRITS

The tradition of winemaking and distilling schnapps is deeply rooted in Merano. Grapes grow here in the mild climate of the Merano Valley Basin as if in a giant amphitheater. Indigenous red varieties include Vernatsch and Lagrein. If you're a fan of white wine, tasting these fresh and fruity whites is an absolute must. South Tyrol's dessert wines are particularly highly regarded: Spätlese wines, Goldmuskateller and, above all, Rosenmuskateller. In Dorf Tirol, the Dolcissimo awards event offers an ideal occasion for tasting and celebrating dessert wines.

The traditional distillates such as brewer grains, fruit brandy, Marilleler (apricot), Nusseler (walnut) and pear brandies are made from high-quality raw materials that are either locally cultivated or that grow wild. These are certainly among the finest specialties of the Merano and Environs region. There are also breweries in Merano and Environs: the largest and best known is the Forst specialty-beer brewery in Algund.

» Meran Burggräfler Winery

Knowledge about the right site for a given grape variety, the selective manual harvest in the vineyard, and the painstaking process of vinification in steel or wooden barrels: these are the cornerstones upon which the philosophy of the Merano Burggräfler Winery is built.

NATURE PARK & NATIONAL PARK

Only about 15% of the magnificent Merano and Environs landscape is habitable. The power of water, the power of imposing mountains, the radiance of crystal-clear mountain lakes, and the meditative effect of the area have traditionally dominated the land and its people. To protect this natural wealth, large sections of the region have been placed under protection. The best – indeed only – way to really explore these parks is on foot.

32

» Texel Group Nature Park

Texel Group Nature Park is South Tyrol's largest natural park and covers an area of about 33,000 hectares, which is roughly equivalent to about 45,000 football fields. An exceptionally wide array of species of flora and fauna make this park a paradise for anyone who loves nature.

33

» Stilfserjoch National Park

Stelvio/Stilfserjoch National Park is one of Italy's oldest protected reserves. With approximately 134,000 hectares, it is one of Europe's largest nature parks and extends across four Italian provinces. In the center stands the highest massif of the eastern Alps: Mount Ortler, with Stilfserjoch Pass, from which the park's name stems. You can view majestic ibex, marmots and golden eagles, among others, inside the national park.

MMM – MESSNER MOUNTAIN MUSEUM

Legendary mountaineer Reinhold Messner has dedicated a museum project to mountains and mountain culture. Housed in unusual settings within the magnificent Alpine landscape, the five museums are places to come face-to-face with the mountains, with humanity and ultimately with oneself.

MMM Juval is located at Juval Castle and deals with the mythological aspect of the mountain and its role within different cultures. Holy mountains around the world are highlighted. The adjacent zoo rounds out the offering and makes Juval Castle an ideal destination for the whole family.

MMM Firmian is located at Sigmundskron Castle near Bolzano. A fascinating contemporary structure made of glass and steel houses the museum. The permanent exhibition focuses on the history of mountaineering and on how mountains are depicted in the fine arts.

MMM Dolomites, located south of Cortina d'Ampezzo at an elevation of more than 2,000 meters, centers around the theme of rock climbing.

MMM Ortles is situated below the highest mountain of the Eastern Alps, Mount Ortler. Built underground, it evokes the feeling of being stuck in a crevasse. This museum, in fact, highlights an intriguing theme: eternal ice.

MMM Ripa in Bruneck is dedicated to establishing direct contact with a variety of different mountain cultures.

Events

SPRING

» Ötzi Alpine Marathon

Participants in the Ötzi Alpine Marathon compete at mountain biking, running and backcountry skiing. The race begins in the village of Naturns and ends all the way up on the Grawand Glacier, in the Senales Valley, at an elevation of 3,212 meters.

» LanaLive

The multi-week LanaLive cultural festival featuring music, art, literature, theater and cabaret has a different theme every year. The festival in Lana presents some interesting artists and musicians and makes a big impression as a result of its exceptional venues.

SUMMER

» Soirées at Tyrol Castle

Set against the magnificent backdrop of Tyrol Castle, music from different countries and cultures, from jazz to Latin American baroque, and from Irish folk music to tango is presented from June to July. During the breaks, there are opportunities to taste medieval cuisine.

» Transhumance

One of the liveliest traditions in the region is the Senales Valley Sheep Drive: every year in mid-June, shepherds drive around 4,000 sheep from the Vinschgau and Senales valleys across the main Alpine ridge to the pastures in the Ötztal Valley.

» South Tyrol Jazz Festival

This festival features traditional and modern music performed by artists of international renown. The locations of the concerts are also unusual: castles, alpine pastures, old farms, alleyways, streets, and theaters.

» Asfaltart – International Festival of Street Artists

Children and adults alike will be drawn into the magic of the Asfaltart International Festival of Street Artists. Clowns, puppet theater performers, trapeze artists, jugglers, mimes and acrobats delight crowds on Merano's streets and squares.

» MeranOJazz Festival

MeranOJazz is a top-flight festival featuring well-known jazz musicians who give truly memorable concerts. The Middle European Jazz Academy, which takes place simultaneously, features a series of master classes and workshops given by a good dozen renowned jazz musicians.

» Südtirol Classic Schenna

In July, the village of Schenna is dedicated to the cult of cars: the Südtirol Classic rally runs along South Tyrol's most beautiful panoramic roads and mountain passes through the imposing Dolomites and the Mediterranean-influenced valleys. A small fleet of Fifties Speedsters is also on hand, together with some real beauties from the Golden Twenties.

» World Music Festival at the Gardens

From June to August, the Water Lily Pond at the Gardens of Trauttmansdorff Castle in Merano takes center stage – literally: its floating stage is the venue for star-studded open-air concerts. In keeping with its Plants From Around the World theme, Trauttmansdorff showcases musicians from the continents of the world.

» Music Weeks Merano

Music Weeks Merano is among the most important classical music festivals in Europe. The festival, which takes place in August and September, maintains the highest of artistic standards. Its world-class orchestras, chamber-music ensembles and solo performers are guaranteed to please even the most discriminating of classical music aficionados.

AUTUMN

» Merano Grand Prix

Jockeys from all over the world converge in Merano to compete in this spectacular steeplechase, which has a rich tradition – and a famously rich purse.

» Transhumance

All good things must come to an end. This also goes for sheep, goats and cattle: high-alpine summer pasturing ends in September or October. The herdsman adorn the animals and drive them back down into the valley, where they are received by the farmers with a great deal of ceremony.

» Merano Grape Festival

Thousands of locals and guests flock to Merano every year in the third October-week to take part in one of South Tyrol's most popular harvest celebrations.

» International Brass Festival

The month of October brings the International Brass Festival to Merano. Bands from all over Europe join in on the festivities.

» Chestnut Festival Keschtnriggl

The Chestnut Festival takes place from October to November in and around the villages of Lana and Tisens-Prissian. The festival carries on ancient local traditions in celebration of the chestnut harvest and its attendant delicacies.

» VinoCulti

From September to November, the VinoCulti event forms part of “Wein (er) leben”, a series of events centered in the village of Dorf Tirol. A highlight of this gourmet festival, which shines the spotlight on South Tyrol's high-quality wines, is Dolcissimo: a competitive tasting for the title of South Tyrol's top dessert wine.

» Merano Wine Festival

This epicurean gathering at the Kurhaus complex is the irrefutable highlight of November. The Merano Wine Festival offers a mind-boggling variety of premium wines and culinary specialties.

» Riesling Days in Naturns

The South Tyrol Riesling Days event is held in Naturns every October-November. Gourmet and Riesling: star chefs pull out all the stops at four-star hotels.

WINTER

» Rabenstein Icefight

In Rabenstein in the Passeier Valley, the world's best ice climbers gather to compete at the Rabenstein Ice Tower. The 25-meter structure is considered to be one of the most sophisticated artificial ice-climbing constructions in Europe. It is open daily to the public when the competition is not taking place.

» Musik Meran

Musik Meran serves up uncomplicated access to classical music – with a little side dish of education. In addition to the Youth Meet Artists evening series, there are concerts designed to awaken a love of music in young people.

CHRISTMAS MARKETS

(see page 35)

» Merano Christmas Market

Spending Christmas in Merano means being transported into a magical world. Set against the romantic backdrop of the Kurhaus, you'll find market stalls with unique wooden architecture. In Merano, urbane Christmas traditions converge with the aesthetics of the historical spa town, which were influenced by the art nouveau. On offer: local handicrafts, traditional South Tyrolean treats and an extensive program of events for the young and the young-at-heart.

» Tyrolean Christmas in the Castle

In mid-December, a very special sort of Christmas market welcomes visitors to Tyrol Castle. The offering includes Christmas concerts, a crèche exhibition, events for children, a petting zoo and traditional local handicrafts – all set within the fairytale atmosphere of the castle courtyard.

» Sterntaler – A Christmas Fairytale in Lana

The traditional Sterntaler Christmas Market at the town square in Lana gives rise to an atmosphere of true Christmas spirit and contemplation in the historical center of the village. The market offers solely traditional handicrafts and farm products from the local area.

» Algund's Christkindlmarkt and Advent Market in the Stables

In Algund you'll find the traditional Christkindlmarkt at the village church square and, far removed from the hustle and bustle, the handmade items at the small and peaceful Advent market held at the Bachguterhof farm.

» Arts and Crafts at Kallmünz Castle, Merano

This much-loved artisan marketplace is held in the courtyard of Kallmünz Castle on two weekends in December. Artists and craftsmen from South Tyrol and abroad offer art, jewelry and ceramics for sale.

» Schenner Bauernadvent

The Schenner Bauernadvent event is a rural Advent festival held in Schenna around mid-December. Handicrafts, music and Christmas delicacies are displayed and available for purchase.

» Märtiner Sternstundn

On the third and fourth weekend of Advent, the Passeier Valley Way of Life – as something to be tasted, experienced and given as a gift – will be on offer in the picturesque streets of St. Martin im Passeiertal, as well as at the village square.

Public Transport

Because of its mountainous terrain, South Tyrol relies heavily on a well-functioning public transportation system and has, as a result, created an integrated transport system. The public transportation system mainly depends on trains, buses and shuttle services; cable cars, trams and funiculars, however, also play an important role. In order to help visitors utilize these services and transportation options effectively and economically, a number of different advantage cards are made available. A mobile yet stress-free holiday in South Tyrol is thus possible – and you can confidently leave the car behind.

The integrated transportation system includes: local buses; regional trains in South Tyrol; the cable cars to Ritten, Meransen, Jenesiën, Mölten and Vöran; the Ritten tram and the funicular to Mendel; and the Swiss Postbus between Mals and Müstair in the canton of Grisons.

TRAVELING BY BIKE

In spring, summer and autumn you can explore Merano and Environs in an environmentally friendly way: by bike and train. The region offers an excellent network of paths running through diverse natural and cultural landscapes. Particularly enjoyable routes include the one that leads to Bolzano and the paths into the Passeier and Vinschgau valleys. The Vinschgau Valley Railway carries cyclists from Merano to Mals in the Vinschgau Valley. You can rent bikes directly at various train stations. The bike path runs with a slight downhill grade along the old Roman trading road, the Via Claudia Augusta, for about 60 km back to Merano. There are six stations along the way where bikes can be returned, if you opt to hop back on the train instead. There are also special tickets offered that include passenger transportation and the bike rental.
